Berlin Crisis Top Topic Of U. N. In Paris

Paris, Sept. 21 (AP)—Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia was elected president of the general assembly of the United Nations today.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

World hopes for some solution of the smouldering East-West crisis centered in Paris today.

Although the Berlin situation was not on the agenda of the United Nations assembly convening today, it was the principal thought in the minds of the assembled diplomats.

There were signs that the Russians would oppose placing the Berlin dispute before the assembly. Neither V. M. Molotov, Russia's foreign minister, nor Vice Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, veteran of U. N. affairs, are represented by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky. This would seem to forestall the four big powers from getting together on a top level at Paris.

In Berlin, German Communist newspapers said the United Nations general assembly had no authority to debate the Berlin crisis.

However, the American, British and French foreign ministers have already conferred on the problem. Their ambassadors at Moscow are enroute by plane to consult with them.

Dewey stressed his "faith in America" in his opening campaign address—faith that "our enterprise system" will achieve "free and fuller production for the benefit of all our citizens"—faith that "we can have peace" in a world in which tyranny is on the march."

The New York governor said he does not "contend that all our difficulties today have been brought about by the present national administration." But he added that "any fair-minded person would agree" part of the difficulties "are merely the result of the administration's lack of judgement, or of faith in several modern American destroyers."

Meanwhile, Britain took drastic steps to re-equip her navy. The admiralty suspended work in the Royal dockyards in order to refit about 100 warships for service.

This was the second phase of Britain's preparedness against any World War III. Already she has slowed down demobilization, stepped up recruiting of new troops, ordered doubling production of jet fighter planes and started readying civilian defenses.

In Washington, diplomatic officials said the Turkish fleet may soon be strengthened by the addition of several modern American destroyers.

The cold war had its rumblings in Russian occupied Germany. In Berlin the official publication of the Soviet military administration declared that the Western powers are grooming Germans as "mercenaries."

STATE TOURIST COUNCIL MEETS

Budget Increased For 1949-50 Program

Blaine, Mich., Sept. 21—Michigan Tourist Council announced at its meeting here today that it has submitted a budget calling for the expenditure of $556,415 to promote the tourist business for the state during the fiscal years of 1949-50. This is approximately ten per cent more than the budget for the current two year periods.

Webb McCall council chairman, explained that increase was the cost of living adjustment resulting principally from increased costs in advertising and in the production of pamphlets, folders and other material. "There were no new items added to our budget," said McCall, "but neither is there a let down in our efforts to keep pace with the forty-four other states that are competing with us."

In a discussion of the summer phase of Michigan's year around tourist business, members of the council were agreed that the season had more visitors than ever before although opinions were that individual spending was somewhat less than in previous years. Traffic at the straits of Mackinac, attendance at state parks, state highway department records all showed a definite increase in visitors over 1947 and other big years.

After hearing of progress report by L. R. Schoenmann of initial work being done by the Michigan State College Tourist and Resort service the council members voted unanimous approval of the program. It is the college extension program designed to provide free consultant service to resort owners and operators throughout the state.

Displaced Persons May Now Apply For Residence In U. S.

M. H. Powers, officer in charge of immigration and naturalization service, Sault Ste. Marie, has announced that application forms for the use of displaced persons residing temporarily in the U. S. may be obtained at his office by letter or by personal call.

The board of directors also reviewed applications for membership in the group. Applications of seven Escanaba persons were accepted and two special applications were approved and the applicants allowed to become junior members.

The applications of Mrs. Rudolph Bauer of Soo hill, formerly of Liverpool, England; Miss Jeanette Roth, Miss Lois Dewitz, Miss Jane Dutton, Miss Mary Ellen Rasche, Miss Katherine Skopp, and Miss Hillia Karppinen were approved. The Misses Janet Oberg and Patricia Farrell will be accepted for junior membership in the group.

Junior members are those who display an active interest in the work, and who are between the ages of 16-21. After they reach the age of 21, junior members may become senior members of Civic Theatre.

The next Civic Theatre meeting will be held Monday, Sept. 27. Applications of persons interested in membership in the group will be accepted at this time. All persons, especially those over 21, are eligible to become members if they are actively interested in theatre work. This may include acting, stagecraft, costuming, make-up, and other related fields.

Youngdahl Emphasizes Laymen's Importance In Building Christianity

Tremendous things have happened in this country because men have dreamed dreams and have had visions said Rev. Reuben Youngdahl, pastor of the Mt. Olivet Lutheran church, Minneapolis, when he spoke to a large gathering of ministers and laymen at the Christian Workers' conference last evening.

Rev. Youngdahl stressed the importance of laymen's work in the expansion of the Christian church, saying that "out of dreams on the earthly side, God's church is to be built—it must be built by the laymen."

Laymen must catch the vision and have the power to dream, the speaker stressed. They must not give to the church according to what they believe to be their share, but according to how God has blessed them. No matter what his talent, said Youngdahl, there is something each and every layman can do in the furthering of God's work.

Report On World Council

Citing the home missionary work of several of his parishioners, Youngdahl repeated the idea that lay evangelism is the only way that the Christian church can grow.

At the dinner meeting held at the Bethany Lutheran church, Rev. Wilbert Evans, pastor of the First Congregational Lutheran church, Sheboygan, gave a report on the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam, which he recently attended.

Rev. Evans spoke strongly on the conditions of ruin which exist in Germany, saying that we must forget our differences so that this may never happen again. He said the problem of Europe is the problem of the uprooted people. Already seven million DP's have been moved although there still remain one million displaced persons in Europe, 600,000 of them being in Germany.

Await Pumping Results

THE CITY OF ESCANABA is following a sensible policy in withholding action on the construction of a Ranney water collector until pumping tests now in progress determine definitely whether the quality of the water to be obtained will meet desired specifications.

The delay means, of course, that the installation of a collector will not be made this fall, as the Ranney people proposed. The water now being pumped at a slow rate, 90 gallons per minute, from the test well does not meet city requirements. It is far too hard and contains particles of iron greatly in excess of maximum tolerance.

It has been predicted that the quality of the water will improve as the volume of water that has been lying in the aquifer for years is pumped off and water filtered from the bay through the sand takes its place. Preliminary results seem to bear out that prediction as the quality of the water is gradually improving and the iron content is diminishing proportionately.

Nevertheless, the water still analyzes at more than 300 parts of hardness per million and the iron content is in excess of 40 parts per million. The city desires water at no more than 140 parts of hardness per million with a maximum iron tolerance of one part per million.

The bay water analyzes at 135 parts of hardness per million and with an iron content of .03. The theory of the Ranney collector is that it will deliver water similar in character to that of the bay water.

Before it can be accurately determined whether a Ranney collector will deliver the quality of water desired, it will probably be necessary to continue the pumping tests several months. The cost of conducting such a test is negligible, involving only the power consumed in operating a 15 hp electric motor.

The city officials apparently are satisfied that the collector will deliver an ample volume of water to meet the community's requirements. The tests now are designed to reveal whether the quality will be acceptable.

If it all works out satisfactorily, the city probably will enter into a contract with the Ranney company to install a collector next summer. In the meantime, present sources of water supply seem adequate to carry through the winter and spring.

This Country Is Queer

IN 1946 the American Red Cross gave to Russia, absolutely gratis, thirty-two hospitals costing hundreds of millions of dollars. This was done as a friendly gesture, and without thought of repayment in any way. We are being repaid, but only with the rankest ingratitude, and this princely gift, together with no end of lend lease at a very critical time, doesn't earn even a single friendly look from the U. S. S. R.

These thoughts are prompted by the hospital situation at Iron Mountain, in the Upper Peninsula. A federal hospital is being built there, but rising costs are playing hob with the construction of a much needed county hospital which has been on the drawing boards for a long time. There seems little likelihood that the county institution will be completed soon.

The money for the munificent Red Cross gift was collected from American taxpayers, but the taxpayers of Dickinson county are having great difficulty in raising sufficient funds to erect a hospital which time has made an absolute necessity.

The big question seems to be: When are we going to quit paying the fool? There must be an end to his seemingly everlasting throwing away of good American dollars. Why in the world should we finance the building of hospitals in Russia when we cannot build them for our own people?

Maybe the Red Cross will come to the relief of Dickinson and finance, or help to finance a badly needed hospital there. Or has it further plans for Russia, or Germany, or Italy, or some other foreign country that will repay our kindness with a kick and a curse?

Russians Quit Korea

RUSSIA announced Sunday night that all Soviet troops would be evacuated from North Korea by January 1 and expressed hope that the United States would likewise evacuate American troops from South Korea.

The Soviet action came as a surprise to the Americans, although the Russians have frequently suggested that Soviet and American troops be evacuated simultaneously from Korea. The United States has repeatedly rejected that suggestion, not because we have any designs upon Korea but simply because American evacuation would be quickly followed by civil war in which the Communist troops of the north would take over the entire country.

Under Russian occupation, North Korea was turned into a training ground for a Communist army, trained by Red Army officers and equipped with Russian arms. The North Korean Communist army is said to number 200,000 men. The defense force of South Korea numbers only 60,000.

Still another factor has prompted the Americans to reject the Russian proposal of evacuation. North Korea borders Russian Siberia and Russian troops would merely move across the border, remaining there in force ready to march back into Korea to help out the Korean Communist army if such help would be needed.

The chips thus are stacked against us in Korea. The Russians, of course, will make political capital of our refusal to withdraw American troops from Korea and will insist that our action implies a policy of American imperialism in Korea.

We have guaranteed that Korea will be given the right to a government of its own choosing. We cannot fulfill their pledge by moving our troops out and permitting the Communists to seize the government by military force.

Fighting For You

"SAFETY is hard to advertise," says the New York Times. "Most people think they have it, like common sense. Many hazards become contemptible because they are as familiar as the loose wire in the kitchen... Who sees the build-up of static electricity in the dress you clean with gasoline? Even the shock of a big hotel fire wears off and false security exerts its aged drug."

That is why fire prevention work must never slow down—and why every medium of communication must constantly be employed to keep the menace of fire before the American people. Today fire is costing us some $700,000,000 a year in direct waste alone—and the indirect waste is two to three times as great. Worse still, it is taking more than 10,000 lives. And fire is the cause of about one-fourth of all accidental deaths to children.

According to the best authorities, about 90 per cent of all fires are preventable. They are the product of human carelessness, ignorance or forgetfulness. That goes for the run-down heating plant which sets a home afire—or for the cigarette butt thrown from a car which leads to the ravage of millions of acres of fine timber and the destruction of wild life. The fire which cannot be prevented is rare indeed.

The war against fire is being fought for you—and for everyone else.

NO CROWN FOR MT. RAINIER (Grand Rapids Press)

Quite sensibly national park service officials have put their foot down against trying to "build up" Mt. Rainier in southeast Washington to the point where it would rank as the nation's second highest mountain peak. Nature ordained that its 14,408-foot altitude should place it fourth among the country's mountains. But a group of overzealous Washington residents have wanted to improve on Nature. They were all set to pile 24 feet of rock on Mt. Rainier when the park officials stepped in.

Had they succeeded the Washington peak would have been outranked only by California's 14,500-foot Mt. Whitney. As it is, Mt. Rainier will continue to rank below Colorado's 14,431-foot Mt. Elbert and 14,418-foot Mt. Massive.

But height isn't everything even in a mountain. The most famous piece of natural architecture in the country unquestionably is Pike's peak, and it doesn't even get in among the 25 highest in Colorado, let alone the nation as a whole. But no Coloradan thinks the less of it for that reason. In fact the average resident of that state seems bent on selling the country the idea that even a "shorty" like Pike's peak can be an eminently satisfactory work of art. No more does Mt. Rainier need an artificial crown to make it a regal spectacle.

IT'S OFF TO COLLEGE AGAIN (Milwaukee Journal)

Parents are packing their boys and girls—some 2,500,000 of them—to college and university. Father and mother are making great sacrifices in many cases. Not only are college fees and living costs higher than ever but fewer students will be getting checks from Uncle Sam. This means a bigger share of the bigger expense will be paid by parents.

Parents spend a lot of time getting clothes for Jane and writing letters for Johnny, who wants to get on the football team or into a fraternity. But mighty little parental effort is devoted to discovering just what Johnny and Jane will be taught, how well they will be taught, and whether they are choosing the school and the courses and the activities that will fit them for future success and happiness.

It is a pity that the American parent takes so much on faith and leaves so much to chance or blind choice in this respect. Colleges and universities and their faculties would be infinitely better if parents had a far more active and important role in determining the educational program for their children.

The correct word is irrelevant, "not applicable or pertinent." Note that in the erroneous "irrelevant" the "v" is where the "I" should be, and the "I" is where the "v" should be. Army Is Troubled By Rising Costs

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington.—In facing Moscow through the long, wearisome negotiations over the skeleton of Berlin, the three Western powers—France, Britain and the United States—have presented a united front. The reality of that united front has been important in the contest between East and West.

While the front has been a fact beyond dispute, there have nevertheless been differences of opinion and attitude. These have become sharper as the duel of nerves with Russia approaches a show-down or something very much like a showdown.

Between the lines of the speeches made in the House of Commons in London the other day you could read the story of those differences. And, significantly, the conservative Anthony Eden was in agreement with the Labor Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin. Here was one of those long projections of British policy that rises above party politics.

Eden and Bevin said, in effect, that Britain must form the nucleus of a third force that would serve as a balance between the colossus of the U. S. S. R. on one hand and the colossus of the U. S. A. on the other. Naturally, it was not put so bluntly, but that was the import of it.

These speeches may have been carefully timed in the aftermath of the trans-Atlantic argument over procedure on the next stage of the Moscow negotiations. That argument between London and Washington went on over the clattering tele-com machines that are such a poor substitute for face-to-face and voice-to-voice exchange of ideas.

DANGER OF WAR

The British reaction produced a gust of irritation in some quarters here. One heard again that unhappy word "appeasement."

Whether the irritation is justified is hard for anyone on the outside to say. American policy-makers have seen the immediate future course of the Russian duel in terms of final definitions and a schedule that would be gone through with in spite of any and all risks. The biggest risk is, of course, the risk of war.

The British did not see it that way. They have realities of their own, and one of them is the reality of geography. In the last war, Britain came within a hair's breadth of destruction, and that is a fact not quickly forgotten.

Another reality close at hand for the British is the sad plight of France. The third of the Western powers in the united front cannot find a stable government among bitterly warring political factions.

So the British prescription was for more patience and more caution. It is hard to quarrel with that prescription short of accepting the terrifying logic of the weapons of mass death that science has put into the hands of ignorant, childlike mankind.

Some Britshers accept this logic. Thus, Bertrand Russell, the distinguished philosopher, said in a speech in Holland a year ago that the only chance of saving Western civilization lay in attacking Russia within a year and a half before the Russians had the atomic bomb.

For the most part, however, the British do not follow that kind of logic. They believe in compromise, in yielding a little under pressure if that is necessary to maintain a final position. Often this has worked in the past. In some instances it has been disastrous. For such an approach, timing is all important.

In recent days the note sounded by American policy-makers has emphasized caution and patience. Gen. Lucius Clay in Berlin said that he did not believe war was around the corner.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall talked to a group of leading publishers and editors whom he had asked to come to Washington for a conference last week. As he has done in public statements, he stressed the need for a calm approach to the East-West contest. Inflammatory talk about the inevitability of war certainly has not helped the negotiators. That kind of talk has made a good sounding board for Soviet propaganda.

The East-West contest might conceivably go on for years, with recurring periods when it is acute. The difference between London and Washington is not a basic one. If a showdown comes in spite of all patience and all caution, then the British would be with us. But the profound hope on the other side of the Atlantic is that a little more holding back and a little less arbitrariness may prevent a showdown, and it is hard for the ordinary illogical human being not to share that hope.

says of the business of writing, "Nothing that the normal, average man calls good has not cost me."

No, don't blame the linotype for that absolutely meaningless sentence. It is not only a horrid example of inversion; it also contains a double negative: "Nothing... it has not cost me," or "It has not cost me."

If we rearrange the sentence so as to do away with the inversion, we find that it reads thus: "It has not cost me nothing that the normal, average man calls good."

It's still gibberish, despite the rearrangement.

I suggest that the American English magazine ain't got no right to not print nothing like that there Tooker article.

Bebe Daniels, reporting Hollywood goings on, broadcast: "Mr. and Mrs. _____ are expecting their third child within a month." No, Bebe, it can't be done, not even in Hollywood, where most of the laws of nature have been either repealed or amended. Better say: Mr. and Mrs. _____ are expecting their third child. INTO THE PAST

Ten Years Ago

Manistique—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Payette of London, Eng., have left for New York City where they will board the Queen Mary Wednesday for their home, following a visit here at the home of Mrs. Grace Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Max Osterhout.

Principal reason for the decline in advertising and use of quack nostrums is the government's insistence that the product do what is claimed for it. Unable to make extravagant claims to dupe the gullible, the volume of sales dropped to a degree that forced all "cure-all" out of existence.

The extravagant claims made by patent medicine manufacturers of 60 years ago is revealed in an old newspaper discovered by Clarence Moreau, Escanaba commercial artist. The paper was found by Moreau in the back of an old picture frame. The paper was published in Rochester, N. Y., in 1887.

Suppose we take a look at some of the advertisements to see what you could get to bring you back to health.

GUARANTEED CURE

Sixty years ago people called tuberculosis "consumption," a dread disease from which many suffered and few were cured. But the manufacturer's of "Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs" publicly claimed its product was "guaranteed to cure and relieve all cases."

The extravagant claims made by patent medicine manufacturers of 60 years ago. Manufacturers of patent medicines hoodwinked the suffering by printing testimonials from "Mrs. Smith" who was cured of rheumatism before she finished the first bottle.

"No case is incurable," they claim.

ANTARCTIC IS PLENTY COLD

Penguins Can Have It, Says Ruark

By ROBERT C. RUARK
New York, Sept. 20 — The once fascinating project of peering into neglected nooks of the world has become fairly humdrum since the last war, largely because there isn't much territory left unscanned by tender messages from Kilroy. The average American broom closet will yield anything from a shrunken head to a Tibetan prayer-wheel, because Joe got around, and with it came an easy familiarity with everywhere.

There was, however, one vast spot—greater in size than a combined America and Europe—which eluded the GI footprint. The Navy has just run up a document on it that I would like to recommend. It is a technicolored film of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's most recent penetration of the Antarctic, and may be a revelation to those who always thought of the North and South Poles as a couple of flagstaffs sticking out of a snow hummock.

The film, called "The Secret Land," is as fascinating in its newness as the old magic lantern slides Martin Johnson used to fetch home from the Cannibal Isles, and twice as brilliant. It was shot in color by Navy and Coast Guard photographers, and a smooth continuity will be released for general view around the last of October. There isn't any boy-meets-girl in it, or even Robert Mitchum, but it is as gripping in its way as another service classic, "Fighting Lady."

Among other things, it is a graphic argument against getting into a war with the Russians, if such a war is to be fought on a goose-pimpled terrain. I will rally to the colors any day, against Mexico, Cuba, Fiji, Honolulu, or Hollywood, Calif., but I uncave this polar stuff. It is asking too much of a fighting man to sweat from fear and then have to break off the icicles.

Logistic Problem
This is the coldest movie you ever saw. You cannot appreciate frostbite until you have seen it in technicolor—or the purple blush of a windgawed nose, or the stately, symmetry of ice-hung whiskers.

They sent the good admiral, who has been suffering from psychic chills ever since I was a tot, back to Antarctica in 1946. The polite explanation was that the expedition aimed at surveying mineral wealth, charting unexplored territory. Chiefly, Byrd went back to carve our initials on the pole, against a day of global competition for the territory, and to find out what it takes to fight a subzero war. Say, against Russia.

He found out, all right. Navy and Coast Guard photos shot so many pictures it'll take five years to develop and classify 'em. For 72 minutes of culling shots, you can watch a logistic problem that made a June picnic out of the Pacific and European campaigns. You could win a narrow-gauge war with less time and trouble than it took to keep Byrd and 4000 men fed and defrosted. When you remember that we froze off a few thousand GI feet in the last one, just because of some blithe absentmindedness on the part of one of our supply generals, the vast potential unpleasantness of a future conflict on icy terrain is appalling.

The admiral's shutter-snappers established, beyond cavil, that there is plenty of snow, penguins, seals, ice, coal, and sundry other precious minerals in the frozen south. They established that any war, at any time, on similar shivery soil would be the most fantastically complicated joust in the history of man's ingrowing unpleasantness. They established that the great ice-rimmed wastelands are an inexhaustible treasure trove for the future. And I'll just tell you something.

So far as I am personally concerned, the penguins can keep it all. It's too far to travel to squabble over real estate, and that applies to its twin on the other side of the world, the Arctic. I don't care how much gold they got, how much coal they got, how much uranium they got—I say leave it to the walruses.

So far as fighting a war on, over, or about a land like that—well, they say no germs can exist under such temperatures. That does it. If it ain't good enough for germs, it sure ain't good enough for me.

Jacket Lengths Vary

Though most of the suit jackets are short with little boy collars, self ties, buttons from neckline to waist and sleeves set in or cut in one with shoulders, there are also several wrist length styles. One particularly new looking jacket fitted snugly at the waist is flared out sharply in gores from the hips in back. Another is seen in a beautiful suit named "Second Marriage," designed in pale French gray with silver fox collar.

MATTRESS CO. IS EXPANDING

More Employment Will Be Furnished

One of the newest industries in Escanaba is the Delta Mattress company.

The factory was established here, at 1412 Ludington street, early this summer. It is owned by three Army veterans, Jay Sleeper, Jack and Clyde McKenzie.

The company employs eight men but foresees a level of production in the not too distant future which will require employment of 30-35 persons. All help is experienced or trained at the factory, which is in the rear of the store building.

The Delta Mattress company sells factory-direct to customers and specializes in large orders brought in by tourist and hunting cabin owners.

At present the management of the store is seeking a large building in Escanaba to house the factory section. The retail store will be located on Ludington street.

From 20 to 40 mattresses are manufactured each day at the plant in addition to Hollywood beds, studio couches and specially-ordered custom built furniture. Employees make the latter either at the factory or in the home, if built-in furniture is wanted. The factory also rebuilds and reupholsters furniture.

All wood used in the factory is purchased locally. Woodwork is done by factory employees and in the future the company plans to expand to build a separate woodworking unit.

The veterans also have a retail mattress store in Sault Ste. Marie and eventually plan to build stores in every major Upper Peninsula city. Within the next few days they will be incorporated.

The men came to Escanaba because of its central location in the peninsula. All have had years

Outside Tourists Not to Blame For High Traffic Toll

Lansing (P)—Michigan residents who blame out-of-state tourists for the state's heavy traffic accident toll are wrong, according to Capt. C. J. Scavarda of the State Police.

Paul F. Hill, representative of the National Safety Council, said a survey showed that only 5.6 per cent of Michigan highway accidents last year involved out-of-state drivers.

In a report to the State Safety Council, Hill said 17,907,000 miles were traveled on Michigan highways last year on the basis of federal gasoline tax reports.

He complimented Michigan on standing fourth among 12 Midwest states in modern traffic handling, but contended the state was falling down in failing to have a public organization supporting traffic improvement, in school safety and in cooperation between cities and the state.

"Michigan," Hill said, "is the second lowest among the states in the number of failures it gives to persons taking driving license examinations for the first time, this is because you have local officers giving the examinations and they won't flunk their neighbors and friends as would trained state examiners which 41 states now have installed."

State traffic experts contend that the National council's figures failed to consider that every Michigan driver must take a new drivers examination every three years and that Michigan policy actually is stiffer than most states.

Scavarda said that 65 per cent of the local license examiners were doing "as good a job as any place in the nation."

Slim Contour Line

The fall contour line is slim, sleek. Skirts are held to a narrow, tubular line by apron fronts, curving tiers and tulip silhouette. Front drapery is deftly caught to the side or swept to the back.

THEY DIRECT CITY SCHOOL AFFAIRS—

The expansion of Escanaba public school facilities, including the construction of a new Senior High school and a school for handicapped children, will be the responsibility of the Escanaba board of education and its superintendent, pic-

FUTURE BRIGHT FOR EDUCATION

Expanded School System Foreseen In Escanaba

Already recognized as a community with one of the finest educational systems in Northern Michigan, Escanaba today stands on the threshold of an expanded school program that will in large part be made possible through gifts of the late Mrs. Catherine Bonifas.

Mrs. Bonifas, widow of the late William Bonifas who amassed a fortune in lumbering, died May 25 at her home in Escanaba. She willed benefactions totaling $2,475,000, including $820,000 to the Escanaba board of education and $600,000 for construction of a Catholic Central High school in Escanaba.

John Lemmer, Escanaba superintendent of schools, is administrator of the estate of Mrs. Bonifas. The estate is in stocks and bonds, principally stocks, and the conversion of stocks to the best interest of the gift recipients, together with present-day high cost of construction are factors in utilizing the bequests.

Aid to Education

The $820,000 to the board of education of the Escanaba school district is for the following purposes: $500,000 for the construction of a Senior High school; $150,000 for a school for handicapped children; $100,000 toward the establishment of a Junior College in Escanaba; $20,000 for the repair and maintenance of Catherine Bonifas Technical school; and $50,000 for scholarships for worthy graduates of any high school in Escanaba.

No plans for construction are being considered at this time, and Supt. Lemmer pointed out that at today's prices the bequests for a new school and a school for handicapped children would probably fall short of the required total.

Michigan educators have for several years been impressed with Escanaba's educational system because it includes programs not usually found in smaller communities.

Serves the Area
Its cooperative program of "on the job" training for Senior high school students has been highly successful and is now being expanded with the cooperation of employers in Escanaba. The counseling service in the high school is recognized as exceptionally good.

An all-around special education program for the physically handicapped and slow-learning children has attracted wide attention and students from all over the Upper Peninsula. It is this program that will be expanded when gift of Mrs. Bonifas is used for the construction of a school for handicapped children.

"This means," the department said, "that no farmers may ship farm products or other goods in interstate commerce if, within 30 days before the removal of these goods, he has employed a child under these circumstances on the farm where the goods were produced.

"This provision applies to a farmer whether he himself ships the goods directly out of the state or whether he delivers them to a warehouse or wholesale dealer that does the actual shipping.

"The ruling applies also to growers of vegetables, fruit, and other crops that are delivered to canning, processing or refining establishments within the state if the resulting canned, processed or refined foods move in interstate commerce."

High school will be located in a two-block area directly west of Lakeview cemetery.

Contemplated expansion of the parochial grade schools by parishes will further add to the educational facilities in Escanaba.

CITY AND FARM PULL TOGETHER

Rural-Urban Cooperation Is Successful Here

Cooperative programs that have successfully fostered good understanding between Escanaba business men and farmers of Delta county, to their mutual benefit, are so outstanding they have become the inspiration for other communities throughout Michigan.

Rural-urban cooperation has long existed in Delta county, and it is still growing. The late Herman Gessner encouraged farmers to bring produce to a street-side market many years ago, and today the city maintains a popular farmers' market and the Escanaba council is making plans to enlarge it.

Escanaba business and professional men, the Chamber of Commerce and service clubs cooperate with farmers of the Delta county area in a variety of "booster" problems. In these programs they have the active assistance of Michigan State College extension service and the county agricultural agent, J. L. Heiman.

Setting New Records

It was an Escanaba, the late Atty. General H. J. Rushton, who while a state senator sponsored legislation establishing the Upper Peninsula State Fair.

The rural-urban cooperative program really began to flourish back in 1940 when Escanaba business men, assisted by E. A. "Pip" Wenner, former county agricultural agent, sponsored Potato Booster Contest. Purpose of the contest was to improve the quality and yield of Delta county potatoes.

In this it has been markedly successful from the first year up to the present day. There are annual cash awards and four-year awards. The second four-year period ended last year and a new contest is starting this year. Several changes have been made in the original contest plan, and it has now been extended to include competition among 4-H Club members.

As a result of the contest several new state-wide potato production records have been established by Delta county growers, the latest last year when young Frank Falkies of Baldwin township grew 794 bushels to an acre—an all-time record.

Potatoes and Dairy

Other Delta county potato growers set records in prior years, including Jules Van Damme's 650 bushels in 1941, Emil DeBacker's 715 in 1944, and Fulgenz Falkies' 618 bushels in 1946. In every year except 1945 one or more county growers produced yields of 500 or more bushels to an acre.

Indicating the cooperative spirit between city and county are the several events in which business men and farmers participate. Service clubs make annual farm tours and business men are guests of the potato growers at an Autumn dinner meeting.

Latest program to be undertaken on the same cooperative basis is the Dairy Booster Contest, now in its first year. The contest is patterned after the potato booster competition and its purpose is the same—to encourage high quality production.

The contest for the first year is based on production for the entire herd, with the herds in the contest divided into small, medium and large herds. Several prizes in each division will be awarded by the Chamber of Commerce, including a large trophy for owners of top producing herds and additional prizes and trophies for the others.

All women except one priestess were forbidden to enter the enclosure at the ancient Greek Olympic games.

Rich Simplicity

Simplicity is re-entering the picture in a big way. Femininity is never achieved by fluffy ruffles, but by richness combined with the long svelte line. There is even a hint of the casual in elbow or pushup sleeves, and deep open necklines with buttons on one side, buttonholes on the other, and a tantalizing V of you between. Wonderful lightweight tweeds used for town or country coats over utterly plain jersey dresses, tweeds and tweed knit suits and dresses with wide matching stoles or shawls.

Important collars are everywhere, those ranging from small narrow points which jut out under the chin to others of shoulder to shoulder width deep as a yoke back and front. Many collars are snatched from the throat by buttoned tabs or stock ties.

Delta Guards Must Bring Equipment To Armory Wednesday

Members of Company C, Delta county National Guard, are advised by Capt. Roy J. Johnson, company commander, that a full accounting of all property and equipment must be made before a state inventory is taken Friday evening.

Because of this, all members are requested to report for drill Wednesday night with all equipment, uniforms and other Guard property they may have at home. Each man must report in civilian clothes and must bring with him all other equipment in his possession, Captain Johnson said.

"All property must be checked at the armory Wednesday night," he warned. "A complete inventory will be made, and new property forms will be made out for each man. In order to accomplish this, each man must bring his uniform and equipment with him to be checked and then reissued."

The inventory and reissue of equipment also are in preparation for the annual Federal inspection to be made Monday, October 4.

Method Of Tracing Polio Virus Found

Toronto, (P) — A new possible way of tracing infantile paralysis virus in the human body was opened here recently.

Two research scientists showed pictures of tiny dots that may be polio virus moving inside a nerve. If these dots actually are the virus, the pictures are an important discovery.

They might be a new way to learn how the virus gets into the body and how it moves along nerve pathways to do its damage.

The photographs were made by Dr. E. Derobertis and Dr. Francis O. Schmitt of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with a powerful electron microscope. They were shown to the Electron Microscope Society of America.

The scientists took pictures of the sciatic nerve of a monkey which had been infected with polio virus. The tiny, oval dots could be seen in the tube of the nerve, an inner portion of the nerve which may be hollow. The pictures indicated the dots moved along the nerve's tube.

"We do not claim that these particles that appear as dots in the nerve tube are necessarily the polio virus, but the pictures do suggest that they are the virus or else are intimately connected with it," Dr. Derobertis said.

TOWN HALL NUMBER—One of the highlights of the Town Hall concert series in Escanaba this year will be the appearance of the Westminster choir directed by the noted vocal instructor and composer, John Finley Williamson. The performance of the choir has been booked through the Town Hall committee of the Escanaba Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Junior Chamber Of Commerce Books Many Concert Artists For Music-Minded Escanabans

By ROSE LACHAPELLE

Six members of the Escanaba Junior Chamber of Commerce carry responsibility for a very lively and much-appreciated activity in Escanaba. They volunteered their services as directors of the Town Hall concert series here two years ago and work hard to offer high calibre concerts at easy prices.

They have brought to music-minded Escanabans recognized artists such as Thomas L. Thomas, the Columbus Boy's Choir, the Farbman Sinfonietta and Gold and Fizdale, a duo-piano team.

Among concerts to be given in the city this coming season are by the Westminster choir with John Finley Williamson directing, and by Devy Ehrly, 18-year-old French violinist on his first American tour.

Many of the concerts in Escanaba are booked in cooperation with George Qual presentations in Ishpeming. Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, often work through him for professional advice on concert artists, and provide good musicians through him, at lesser cost.

Town Hall Committee

The committee for Town Hall had Lawrence Girard of Escanaba as chairman last year. A new chairman will be selected this year to fill the vacancy created by the election of Mr. Girard to pres-such as the Orpheus Choral Club, give concerts in Escanaba under the auspices of the JCC Town Hall committee.

Prior to JCC administration of the Town Hall series, various citizens of Escanaba served on the committee. The organization has always been on a non-profit basis.

From time to time the committee has distributed choice blanks to Escanaba concert audiences, to determine over-all appreciation of concert-going citizens.

Many Artists Here

Among concert artists who have been booked to perform for Escanabans over the years were Alec Templeton, blind pianist; the Russian Cossacks, the Vienna Boys Choir, Percy Grainger, Conrad Thibault, Margaret Speaks, Paul Robeson, the Trapp family of Singers, Etta Moten and Enio Bolognini and his string ensemble.

Concerts under the Town Hall series are given in the beautiful 1,000-seat William W. Oliver auditorium located in the Escanaba Junior high school. The auditorium is one of the finest in Upper Michigan and ranks with the best in acoustics.

Escanaba merchants cooperate with the Junior Chamber of Commerce in selling tickets.

Fine Lace Returns

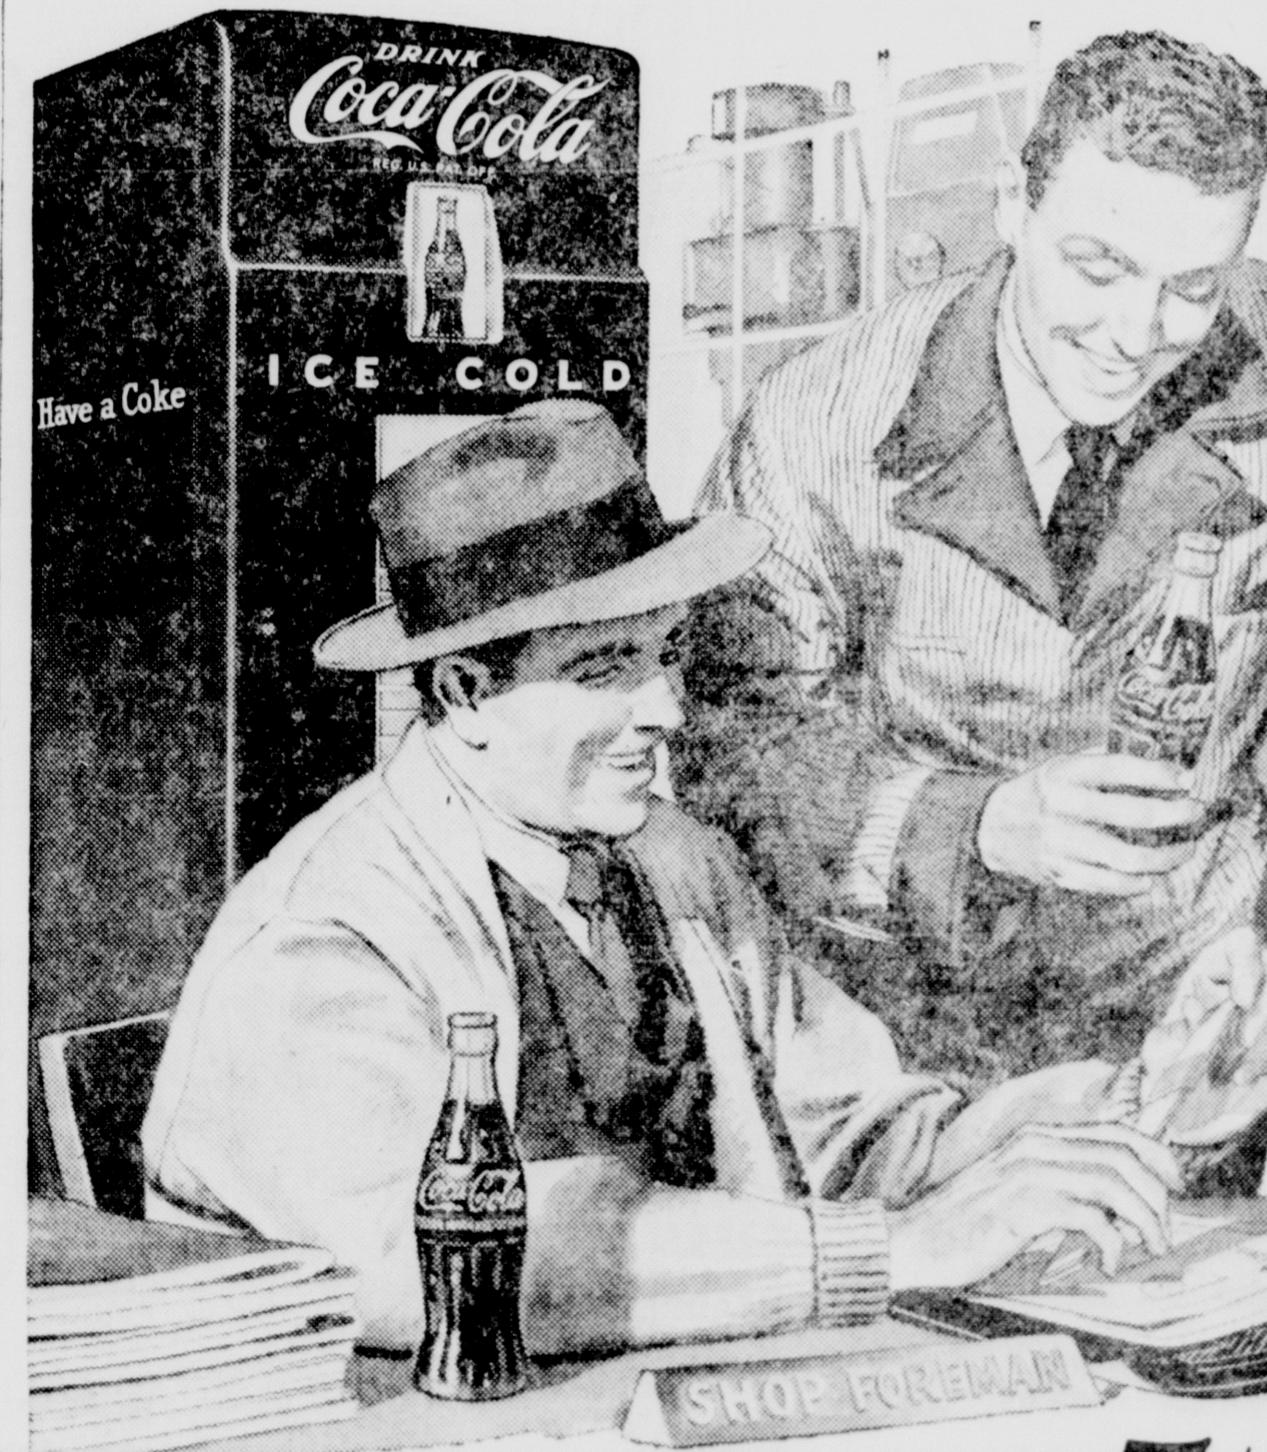

For the first time in years, fine imported thread lace is available, and designers make the most of it in portrait dresses of the arms covered and shoulders bare variety. Particularly effective is one thread lace in dahlia-brown shade over satin. Grace notes of fringe or jet sequins all important for 5 o'clock on occasions. A street length coat dress of black faille goes dress-up with jet fringing the collar and cap sleeves. Jet sequins trace a bolero pattern on the bodies of a short black woolen with U shaped neck, the bolero effect furthered by the loose swinging back of the bodice.

Nylon Satin in Gowns and Slips

Imagine slips and gowns so beautiful they remind you of bridal satin, yet they will wear long and well. It's hard to visualize such a combination, but you will find it in many of the slips and gowns shown in the fall collections.

The secret? A new fabric combination created by a lingerie manufacturer. This new fabric is made of 65% nylon and 35% rayon.

Like nylon, slips made in this new combination are wear and tear resistant. Like shimmering satin they are exquisitely beautiful and have the supple drapability usually not found in nylon fabrics. They wash quickly and easily (dry in half the time usually required for lingerie) and you don't even have to iron them unless you want to. Just a touch of the iron, some women think, improves their appearance, but many women will not iron them at all.

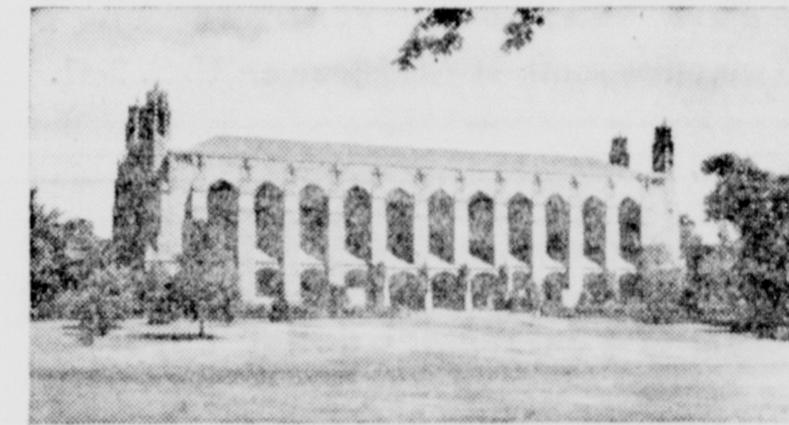

Each slip is a contour fitted design, made to fit like a better dress, and they come in size range to fit all American figure types.

"Northwestern for her pretty girls!"

So runs a well-known college song—and you'll find the song is right if you visit Northwestern's beautiful campus in Evanston, Illinois. This outstanding university is known for its high-ranking Schools of Commerce, Journalism, Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, and others; and for Deering Library, pictured below.

1. NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY is an owner of Standard Oil. It is one of the 167 educational institutions which are stockholders. The total number of colleges, insurance companies, philanthropic organizations, individuals and others who own this company is 97,000! No institutional owner has as much as five per cent of the stock; no one man or woman owns as much as one per cent.

3. JOBS DON'T JUST HAPPEN. They have to be planned and paid for. This company and its subsidiary companies made new jobs last year by spending over twice our net profits for new refinery units like the one above, for new oil wells, pipe lines and many other items to help increase output. Over two-thirds of this money came from borrowings and earnings.

2. MANY RETIRED COUPLES, like the people in the picture, are among the owners who depend on Standard Oil's dividends. Last year, dividends averaged $314 per owner. This is a return on money provided to create jobs and make production possible. The average investment of $24,600 in tools and equipment, for each of our 46,000 employees, is almost four times the average for all industry.

4. MORE PETROLEUM PRODUCTS are available to you this year because of Standard Oil's expenditures. This money helps assure the jobs and security of our employees, the income of our owners, and the supply of petroleum products so urgently needed by you and the nation. Standard Oil employees and owners are cooperating to meet your increasing demand.

ARMY LIFE IS MUCH IMPROVED

Streamlining Is Aiding Morale Says Kelly

There has been a change in attitude among the nation's enlisted men that reflects the seriousness of the times and their intention to be fully fit and able to cope with emergencies if and when World War III should become a reality, says John Kelly, who as reserve officer, stationed for many weeks this summer at Fort Ord, California, has had ample opportunity to take note of such things.

At a talk before the Manistique Rotary Club at its noonday meeting Monday, Mr. Kelly stated that this attitude is in sharp contrast with the listless attitude of these same enlisted men a few months ago. "The men are expecting something to pop," he said.

The present situation, he said, is grimly serious and the army's official personnel is acquainting the men in the armed forces with that fact.

The Berlin crisis, he said, is the major cause of this change in attitude and it is the war department's urgent desire to have the present army in a position to serve most effectively as a nucleus of the greater army that will be created should the worst come to worst.

America's air force and its navy are superior to any such forces of any other country, he said, but its army is, numerically speaking, much below that of Russia.

In equipment, however, the advancement made is amazing, said Kelly. Selection of men for certain duties has been revamped in the interest of efficiency, and the result has been not only a better system of training, but elimination of much useless drill and the shortening of the required training period as well.

Hard-hitting discipline, insulting non-coms and regulations that served no purpose but to humiliate the recruit, are being eliminated as much as possible, said the speaker, who added that promotions in the army of today are based on merit rather than pull.

The purchase of steel braces, adding of a makeup room, the reason's main play, and other important business will be discussed at the next regular meeting which will be held September 22. A program committee was appointed and a varied selection of entertainment is anticipated.

Harris' Sore Arm Tips Tiges, Keeps Red Sox Half Game Up On Tribe

Detroit, Sept. 21 (P) — A nose ahead in the steaming three-way stretch battle for the American League flag, the Boston Red Sox today breathed a sigh of relief against the Yankees and all 10 of them "crucial."

Parnell vs. Gray

Mel Parnell, another lefthander, went after his 14th victory today as the Red Sox tackled the Tigers for the last time this season. Ted Gray (5-1) was Manager Steve O'Neill's choice to pitch for Detroit.

Both starters had hopes for a little better fielding support than the clubs gave Harris and Freddie Hutchinson yesterday.

Two Boston errors in the opening inning gave Detroit both its runs and deprived Harris of a shutout. The Tigers made two glaring errors of commission and several of omission behind Hutchinson, who didn't have his best stuff anyway, yielding a dozen hits.

Dominic DiMaggio, with four hits in five times at bat, and Vern Stephens, belting his 28th home run, were the big guns at bat as the Red Sox pulled themselves together after their sloppy start, aided and abetted by loose play on the part of the Tigers.

The defeat virtually eliminated the Athletics from the pennant fight. The best the A's could do is tie the Red Sox for first place by winning all of their remaining seven games if the Sox dropped all of their ten.

Lefty Mickey Harris, making his first start since Aug. 29, showed no evidence of a sore arm as he pitched the Red Sox to triumph over the Tigers.

Don DiMaggio led the Sox drive with a double and three singles and Vern Stephens chipped in with his 28th homer. Stephens' home was the 26th yielded by Hutchinson this year, a new American League record. The previous mark of 27 was held by Lynn (Line-Drive) Nelson of Philadelphia, in 1939. The major league record is 37 created this season by Muzzy Dickson of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Yanks also were forced to come from behind to nip the Browns. Trailing 5-3 going into the sixth, the Yanks scored twice to tie the score. They moved ahead in the seventh on three singles and clinched the game in the eighth when Joe DiMaggio singled home two runs. Earlier in the game, DiMaggio poled his 39th hit.

Cliff Beaudin, Jr., Ed Gauthier, Bill Sullivan and Dale Wood, of Escanaba Tavern fame, spent the weekend in Detroit and saw three bangup ball games. They picked a good weekend to go to Motor City to see ball games. The Tigers were in high gear Saturday to beat the Yankees and Sunday, the Escanabans saw Detroit take two from the Boston Red Sox.

It's Howard "Bullet" Perron from now on. Perron's showing that monicker . . . He's developed into an explosive type of full-back—small but mighty. The old campaigner, Phil Colasanti, 51-year-old golfer, won the American Soo club championship for the sixth time this summer. He won previously in 1933, 1934, 1935, 1939 and 1940 . . . That's some record . . . They play 36-hole final in the Soo at that . . . And that is no walk around the block for a 51-year-old.

The Yanks were in high gear Saturday to beat the Yankees and Sunday, the Escanabans saw Detroit take two from the Boston Red Sox.

And if he has any more games

Do Spartans Have Chance Against U-M?

East Lansing, Sept. 21 (P) — What chance will Michigan State have against Michigan's Rose Bowl champions when the Wolverines come here Saturday to help dedicate the Spartans' new Macklin Field stadium?

That's an oft-heard question on the M. S. C. campus and on the Spartan practice field these days.

Veteran observers recall the first Macklin Field stadium dedication exactly 24 years ago this week, when Michigan came to East Lansing and had trouble squeezing out a 7-0 verdict. And most of the fans remember last year's debacle, in which Michigan opened its undefeated season by plastering State, 55-0.

The Wolverines have not played here since that 1924 dedication game. From 1924 to 1932, the Spartans scored on Michigan only once—a field goal in 1926, when Michigan won, 55-3. The 1930 and 1931 games were scoreless ties.

Michigan won, 20-6, in 1933. Then began a series of Michigan State victories—16-0, 25-6, 21-7, and 19-14. Michigan has won ever since, the combined scores since 1941—M. S. C. didn't play in 1943 and 1944—reading Michigan 189, State 14.

But, getting back to Saturday's 41st renewal of the series which began in 1898, here are some comments on State's chances:

Dr. Charles F. Holland, team physician: "Some of the boys have been banged up in practice, but we'll be in pretty good shape if nothing happens before Saturday. The boys certainly aren't down in the dumps about the game. In fact, they're a little too cocky if anything. They actually think we're going to beat those Wolverines."

George Alderton, veteran Lansing sports writer: "It won't be as bad as last year, certainly. I understand the betting fraternity is spotting Michigan four touchdowns. That should be about right."

Head Coach Clarence L. (Biggie) Munn: "We'll have 11 men on the field at 2 p. m."

Signals Spur Hunt For Plane Victims Lost In Manitoba

The Pas, Man., Sept. 21 (P)—Planes were hastened today to parachute rescuers into the Manitoba wilderness as ground signals revived hopes for five persons lost Sept. 12 aboard a U. S. Navy plane.

Flashing mirrors and cloth strips on the ground attracted a search plane cruising last night over the community of Skownan, 100 miles southeast of here.

The plane dropped a message asking if the natives knew anything of the Navy aircraft, lost in flight from Churchill to the Pas.

"East in woods on ground," the cloth spelled out.

"About 25 miles east," another message said.

Asked whether the missing persons were safe, the villagers said: "We don't know."

Aboard the missing plane were Naval Capt. Ben Scott Custer of the U. S. Embassy in Ottawa and Capt. Sir Robert W. Stirling-Hamilton of Great Britain. The search already has cost $200,000.

Kit Clardy Claims Communists Have Hand In VA Office

Washington, Sept. 21 (P)—A Michigan lawyer was asked today by the Veterans Administration to "substantiate" his charges that Communist influences are penetrating the VA.

A VA spokesman said Kit Clardy, attorney for the Michigan Aviation Association, had been quoted in the Lansing State Journal as saying the VA policy on G. I. flight training was "shaped by Communist influence."

The administration has ruled a veteran may take flight training under the G. I. program only if he proves he intends to follow flying as a career.

Criticizing that stand, Clardy was quoted as saying:

"The veteran generally is getting a bad deal from VA, not just in the flight training program.

"The VA is permeated with the influence of Communists and fellow travelers who have infiltrated it under the present administration. Their arbitrary and capricious rulings prove they are trying to scuttle everything in sight."

Pay Offer Boosted By Michigan Bell

Detroit, Sept. 21 (P)—Michigan Bell Telephone Co. today boosted by $1 a week its wage offer to 10,500 operators and clerks.

The employees, members of division 44, Communications Workers of America (Ind.) last week announced they would take a strike vote.

The new offer, Michigan Bell said, grants increases of from $3 to $5 in Detroit and $2 to $4 in other Michigan cities. It would bring the maximum wage for clerical workers to $70 and the maximum for operators to $53. The company added:

available spring lambs $21.00 to $23.50; few medium to good shipments $20.50; deck mostly medium grade veal $18.50; earlings $18.50; package common $16.00; slaughter ewes $10.00 down.

Delta's Million Dollar Potato Harvest Begins

The 1948 Delta county potato crop is now ready for harvesting and between now and about Oct. 10 growers will dig an estimated total of 550,000 bushels from 2,200 acres to bring them an anticipated income of nearly $1,000,000.

"We can look for some high yields again this year," said J. L. Heirman, county agricultural agent. "Although there was some dryness in June weather conditions have been generally good."

High yields in Delta county really mean high—for last year Frank Falkies of Baldwin township grew 794.9 bushels an acre to set a new high for the county and a state championship record.

The potato harvest is just now starting and will get into full swing next week, Heirman reported. There has as yet been no frost.

Mansion In Lansing Leased By State As Governors' House

Lansing, Sept. 21 (P)—The state of Michigan today leased from the city of Lansing a 72-year-old "stately, Victorian mansion" for a governors' residence.

The state administrative board approved the lease of the so-called Barnes home at the end of South Capitol Avenue situated on three acres of land sloping down to the Grand river.

The city acquired the property some years ago for park purposes.

Long unused, the house will require extensive remodeling and modernization.

The state has $75,000 to use for that purpose, but building experts expect it may cost more to remodel and equip the house.

The lease was for 50 years and as much longer as used for a governors' home at $1.

The dwelling has an exterior of southern Michigan sandstone and an interior finished in carved walnut and marble. It was built by Orlando Mack Barnes, former Lansing mayor and railroad pioneer, in 1876, approximately the same time that the Capitol building was constructed.

Miami Braced For 95-Mile Tropical Gale

in the county and potato vines have had to be killed with chemical sprays so that digging could start on schedule.

Destruction of the vines is important before digging so the tubers will come loose from the roots, and the potato skins will "set" and not be damaged in digging and handling. Acreage in the county planted to potatoes is about the same as last year.

Blight was more prevalent in many sections of the county in 1948 than last year, and some growers had to spray 12 to 14 times during the season in an effort to keep it under control, the county agent reported.

This year marks the ninth year of the Escanaba Potato Boosters contest, and the start of the third four-year program. Growers are encouraged to join the contest and the winners are awarded trophies and cash prizes.

The contest this year has been enlarged to include growers with acreages of six acres and under, and 4-H club boys and girls. The contests for certified and tablestock growers remains the same as in other years. Winners in the four divisions will be awarded impressive trophies, and cash awards will be received by the runners-up.

The 1948 Delta county Potato Show will be held Oct. 21, prior to the U. P. Potato Show in which all county-show winners will compete for U. P. and state honors.

Coldwater Couple Held As Embezzlers Of Bus Line Funds

Coldwater, Mich., Sept. 21 (P)—Mrs. Berneice Rea and her husband, John J. Rea, were free today under bonds of $5,000 each after circuit court arraignment on charges growing out of alleged mishandling of a bus company's funds.

Both stood mute when they appeared yesterday before Judge Theo T. Jacobs, and both were ordered to stand trial during the court's current term.

The veteran generally is getting a bad deal from VA, not just in the flight training program.

"The VA is permeated with the influence of Communists and fellow travelers who have infiltrated it under the present administration. Their arbitrary and capricious rulings prove they are trying to scuttle everything in sight."

Gov. Dewey Gives Reply To Truman

Mr. Truman today was headed through Utah for Salt Lake City for another main talking stop on his 9,000 mile transcontinental tour.

His running mate, Senator Alben Barkley, resumes his campaign tour today in Delaware. Later this week the Kentuckian heads up the east coast into New England.

Gov. Earl Warren, the GOP vice presidential candidate, meanwhile pressed his cross-country drive in Oklahoma, where he made a bid for support of Democratic voters in the interest of "American unity."

The Alifornian unleashed a sharp attack on Mr. Truman's remarks at the outset of the president's tour that he was "going to give them hell."

"It has been my experience," Warren said, "that people who start out with the publicly avowed purpose to give somebody hell, are usually the first ones to cry 'red herring' when something amiss is discovered in their own backyard."
